Joint-media venture set to begin Monday

By ANDY PURCELL
Campus editor

Beginning Monday WEIU-TV will undergo major changes as it begins producing "Mid-Illinois News Scan"—a news program calling for interaction between the TV station and local print media.

The program, which will be broadcast at 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, calls for the station to work in conjunction with Mid-Illinois Newspapers, which publishes both the Charleston Times-Courier and the Mattoon Journal Gazette.

News Scan will be different from newscasts currently produced by students at WEIU because it will be broadcast from the newsroom of the Journal Gazette in Mattoon using professional newspaper reporters as anchors.

Although some of the students who produce the news for WEIU are concerned

Citing other interests, athletic director quits

By DON O'BRIEN
Staff writer

Saying he wants to pursue other interests, Eastern Athletic Director Mike Ryan announced Wednesday that he is resigning from his position as of Dec. 1.

"I'm investigating several potential opportunities that run the gamut from athletic-related positions to those that are strictly in the business field," said Ryan, who has served as Eastern's top athletic administrator since June 1989. "The only thing that isn't on the list is something in the line of being an athletic director."

Eastern President David Jorns, who said Ryan's move didn't come as a surprise to him, has already met with members of the athletic department to discuss naming an acting athletic director.

"I met with (members of the athletic department) this morning and asked them to gather their thoughts on the matter," Jorns said. "I hope to have all of their responses by the middle of next week."

served as the interim athletic director from December 1988 to May 1989, while the last search for an athletic director was conducted. Schmidt, who has been an associate athletic director at Eastern since 1977, was passed over as a finalist for the athletic director position at the time.

Associate athletic director Ron Papp, who has been with the Eastern athletic department for 31 years, served as interim athletic director from December 1979 to March 1980.

Jorns said the search for a new athletic director will not start for about two weeks.

Ryan began his tenure in May 1989 when he was chosen from a group of four finalists to take over Eastern's athletic department after former athletic director R.C. Johnson accepted the same position at the University of Miami of Ohio in December 1988.

Ryan, who was one of three finalists for the athletic director position at the University of Alaska at Anchorage last September, leaves

Arrest made in connection with court's missing mail

By ANDY PURCELL
Campus editor

A senior from Richton Park was arrested this week as part of an ongoing investigation into missing mail at Eastern's Greek Court complex.

Around 5 p.m. Tuesday, university police arrested Martin J. Vagena and charged him with theft in connection with the investigation, said Tom Larson, chief of the University Police Department.

Vagena, a member of Sigma Nu fraternity, had worked as a mail clerk at Greek Court during the time the mail was reported missing. Larson said Vagena, who lives in his fraternity's Greek Court residence, was questioned by the police earlier Tuesday and was arrested when he returned to the station and turned himself in.

If Vagena is brought to trial in the state court system, he could face up to five years in a state penitentiary, said Susan Wambach, first assistant states attorney for Coles County.

Wambach said if the theft involved an amount of less than $300, it would be classified as a Class A misdemeanor and carry a maximum sentence of 364 days in jail. If the theft was of an amount more than $300, it would be considered a Class 3 felony and would carry a maximum prison sentence of 2 to 5 years.

Since the case allegedly involves tampering with the mail, it could be brought in a federal court where the sentence could be more severe, Wambach said.

Both Vagena and other members of Sigma Nu refused to comment Wednesday.

Senate cuts money for women's issues speaker

By JOHN FERA
Student government editor

Student Senate approved an amended resolution Wednesday to ask the Apportionment Board to set aside $6,795 to bring at least one prominent women's awareness speaker to Eastern in spring 1994.

An original resolution proposed the senate approve the Apportionment Board's recommendation of granting $11,450 to the University Board lecture's committee. This money was supposed to be allocated to bring a Women's Awareness speaker to Eastern next spring.

The UB lecture's committee recently proposed its "wish list" of available speakers, including Gloria Steinem, feminist activist and author, Carol Travis, author of "Mismeasure of Women," Pat Schroeder, D-Col. and Marcia Gillespie, a speaker on racism and sexism.

Many senate members were against the first resolution because it would cost at least $12,500 to bring Steinem to Eastern—more than three times the amount to bring Schroeder ($4,000) and Travis ($4,500).

However, several senate members may not have realized by passing Wednesday night's amended resolution, that this resolution has to be voted again by the Apportionment Board, said Ron Carmona, Board of Governors student representative.

"It will have to go back to AB," Carmona said. "This is only a recommendation by Student Senate. It can stay in a continuous loop, whether that's two weeks or a month, I don't know."

Carmona added that the AB could at a time that the athletic department has its hands full.

“Professionally, we have completed our Title IX gender equity review and now it is a matter of waiting for the official response,” Ryan said. “In addition, we are laying the groundwork for our NCAA certification process and the North Central Association accreditation, as well as our own gender equity self-study.”

While Ryan served as athletic director, Eastern’s athletic teams were successful on the field. Eastern’s football Panthers advanced to the quarterfinals of the 1989 Division I-AA playoffs and the men’s basketball team qualified for the NCAA Tournament with a Mid-Continent Conference Tournament championship in 1992.

“We have accomplished some good things over the past four-and-a-half years, such as our financial stability through increased success of the Panther Club and selective contest scheduling, as well as our corporate sponsorship program. Additionally, we have had key upgrades at some of our facilities and our sports budgets have shown modest increases at a time when most institutions are backsliding.”

Prior to coming to Eastern, Ryan, 48, served as associate athletic director at New Mexico State University, was director of public relations for both the Houston Astros and San Diego Padres of Major League Baseball and was a sports information director at Colorado State and San Diego State universities.

about the fact that they will no longer be anchoring the newscasts, Sue Kaufman, news and public affairs director for WEIU, said the new system will not hurt the students.

“Some of the newspaper people will be on the air so students may be anchoring less but I’m not worried about that because no one gets a job as an anchor right out of college,” Kaufman said. “Students will still be able to work on their production skills on programs like the Lynch Colloquium, EIU Connection, and Panther Country.”

The News Scan system will produce pre-recorded newscasts consisting of local stories covering a seven-county area as well as coverage of national and international news, weather and sports provided by Conus

Communications Company.

Conus Communications is a Minnesota-based company that sells pre-packaged news segments comprised of news broadcast through their satellite system to television stations like WEIU.

Bill Lair and Harry Reynolds, editors of the Journal Gazette and Times-Courier, said they are looking forward to the new project and the benefits it will provide for both WEIU and the newspapers.

“Because Mattoon and Charleston have two colleges (Eastern and Lake Land) we’re very much into the college community,” Reynolds said. “I think this will be a successful venture that will benefit both parties.”

Lair said the News Scan program will bring the newspapers increased exposure and could possibly cause an increase in readership.

“I think the reason the newspapers are interested is this will provide some additional exposure. WEIU goes into the same seven counties that our newspapers circulate in and three or four counties that we currently don’t circulate in,” Lair said.

The News Scan system will not only result in a production change but will also eventually lead to an increase in newscasts.

According to a WEIU press release, WEIU TV has broadcast local daily news programs 38 weeks a year since 1986. Due to summer vacations, holidays and spring and fall breaks, local news went on hiatus because EIU students were not on campus.

“Mid-Illinois News Scan’ will give us the ability to produce newscast five days a week, 52 weeks a year,” Kaufman said.

According to the press release, that kind of service should be available sometime next year.

“We are going into this slowly realizing that things may be a little bumpy in the beginning but this will expand as time goes on,” Kaufman said.

Both Reynolds and John Eisenhour, production director for WEIU, also admitted that production may be unsteady in the early stages but said that’s something that will improve with time.

“Anytime you’re doing something for the first time, it’s bound to be a little bumpy,” Eisenhour said. “But with the talent of the people at the papers, after they get used to having a camera in their face, I see nothing but smooth sailing.”

Adjustment will also have to be made at the local newspapers.

ities are still continuing the investigation into complaints of undelivered mail, Larson said.

Larson said during the month-long investigation, university and post office officials have received a number of informal inquiries from students concerned that they had not received some of their mail.

The first report of possible mail theft came on Oct. 4 and numerous reports and rumors have followed since then, but to date the university police have received only five formal complaints which involve missing mail, he said.

“U.S. postal inspectors have been notified of the arrest and have indicated that they will pursue local prosecution in this case,” Larson said. “The case is also being referred to Eastern’s Judicial Board.”

Larson said students who are missing mail should contact Ron Miller, a detective for the University Police Department.

“In light of this recent incident, the university has taken a number of precautions so that this does not happen again,” said Lou Hencken, vice president for student affairs.

Hencken said mail clerks in Greek Court are now working in pairs so that the mail is distributed properly. The university has also placed backing at the rear of mailboxes to prevent individuals from reaching into other mailboxes.

All locks to the mail room that services that complex have been changed and Greek Court residents are also now required to sign for and pick up their certified mail at the Carman Hall desk.

still vote in favor of its original request to allocate UB $11,450 – thus disregarding the senate’s amendment.

The “loop” Carmona was referring to concerns the fact that senate has the final voice in approving the UB lecture’s committee financial requests. Carmona said the senate members should not carry out this loop too much longer otherwise the UB’s chances of bringing Steinem to Eastern will run out.

“I’m not questioning who they’re bringing, I’m questioning how much money they’re spending,” said senate member Andy Ramage of the UB lecture’s committee efforts to contract Steinem. “It’s just not a good use of students’ money when we can get other nationally renowned speakers for a cheaper amount.”

However, senate member Amy Compton said the chance to bring a nationally-prominent leader like Steinem to Eastern is something that can’t be passed up.

“I think this is a rare opportunity for our university,” Compton said. “If we want to rank with the best (universities) we have to bring the best here.”

Senate member Glenn Fundator said he was also against spending $12,500 on one speaker.

“This is an extremely large amount of money one speaker,” Fundator said. “I just have a problem why UB came so late in the semester with this request.”

Liquor code amendment fails to stir excitement

By TRAVIS SPENCER
Staff writer

Local liquor license holders in violation of Charleston's current liquor code showed little excitement about a proposed amendment to the code, which would make it easier for them to host all-ages events at their establishments.

Currently, minors under the age of 19 are not allowed to enter a liquor-licensed facility unless they are an 18-year-old employee or intend on purchasing and consuming a meal in the dining area of the establishment.

One of part of the amendment to the liquor code would allow an establishment to host an all-ages event as long as minors under 19 remain in an alcohol-free zone. The zone would have to be segregated from the rest of the establishment with barricades and would have a separate entrance.

The second part of the amendment would allow minors under 19 to frequent a banquet facility provided the minor is accompanied by a parent and is attending a special event such as a wedding, function or family reunion.

Mayor Dan Cougill said he proposed two added exceptions after noticing some liquor license holders were hosting all-ages events - a violation of the current liquor code.

Shannon Sherwood, owner of Friends & Co., 509 Van Buren, urged approval of the proposed amendment. Sherwood said she is pleased Cougill understands the Dungeon, an addition to her establishment, is considered a bar alternative for minors.

"During the all-ages shows, I remove all the liquor from the bar and replace it with soda," Sherwood said.

Because of the current liquor code, Sherwood had to cancel an all-ages show by the band NIL 8 last Friday. She said she will reschedule the show for Nov. 21.

If the layover period is waived the council may approve the amendment during its Nov. 16 meeting.

David Smith, a manager at Stix Billiard Bar and Restaurant, 1412 4th Street, said the current liquor code does not affect their banquet hall.

"In the banquet room we do not allow liquor to be served if there are minors using the facility," Smith said.

Smith said if the banquet area is reserved for an older crowd that all minors are already required to be escorted by their parents or legal guardians.

Bob Edwards, a bartender at Stu's for six years, said Stu's alcohol-free teen night every Sunday has been in operation for over fifteen years and was never affected by the current liquor code.

Robert Smyser, a manager at the Charleston chapter of Veterans of Foreign Wars, said the VFW often allows minors under 19 to frequent the dining area of the establishment.

"We have the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts in our dining area for their special events," Smyser said. "However, we don't allow them in the bar area."

Human resource director named

By LA SHINDA CLARK
Staff writer

Elise Post, director of personnel and business services at Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, has been named Eastern's new director of human resources.

Post was selected after a national search by the Human Resources Search Committee.

About 120 people applied for the position, but Post was the only person with a doctorate degree, said Dennis Jones, chairman of the search committee.

Post will leave Lincoln where she has worked for nine years to join Eastern in January.

Post will oversee personnel services for about 750 non-academic civil service employees. Her responsibilities will include recruitment, testing, employment, employee and labor relations, collective bargaining and contract administration, said Shelly Flock, director of media relations.

Post will also serve on Eastern's Business Affairs Council.

Post worked as director of the Pre-College Educational Experience Program at Edinboro State University in Pennsylvania and served as coordinator of counseling services at Clark College in Atlanta, Flock said.

Post also developed an honors living program for on-campus housing while she was at Clark College.

Post received a bachelor's degree in English and secondary education and a master's degree in guidance counseling from Clark College. She earned her doctorate degree in higher education from the University of Pittsburgh.

UB/AB deserve pat on the back for latest effort

At Tuesday night's Apportionment Board meeting, members approved a request submitted by the University Board Lectures Committee for $14,500. The committee requested the funds to bring nationally known feminist author and speaker Gloria Steinem to Eastern next spring.

Editorial

Steinem will speak during National Women's Awareness Month in March.

The move on the part of the UB Lectures Committee to bring a speaker of Steinem's caliber to campus is a good one.

Last spring, the committee brought renowned poet Maya Angelou to Eastern. Angelou was a speaker at President Clinton's inauguration in January and filled Lantz Gymnasium with people from Charleston, Mattoon, Effingham and Terre Haute when she spoke at Eastern.

Big-name speakers such as Angelou and Steinem improve the quality of our entertainment and bring a great deal of publicity to our campus.

Although $14,500 is a large amount of money to spend on one speaker, the crowd Steinem will attract will more than make up for the cost. A small entrance fee was charged to people who attended Angelou's speech last spring, which enabled the Lecture Committee to make up for the money it had to spend to bring her here.

If a reasonable entrance fee is charged for Steinem's appearance, the large amount of money requested by the committee won't be wasted.

Speakers who cost less usually are not as well known to the general public and do not draw as large of a crowd. Although it is a good idea to have such speakers on the weekends on an occasional basis, it is a better idea to have a speaker with a household name appear and draw larger crowds.

The UB Lectures Committee should be applauded for its efforts in providing Eastern with a speaker who will bring a large audience and recognition for someone worthwhile to Eastern's campus.

TODAY'S QUOTE

One good turn deserves another.

Gaius Petronius

Eastern has strict anti-hazing policy

During the past weeks, we've heard much about hazing. After the conclusion of the Office of Student Activities' investigation of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, a press release was issued through the university's media relations. The information issued was specific so as to leave no media vehicle "hanging."

After covering the fraternity hazing incident for two days, The Daily Eastern News lengthened its coverage via Chris Seper's Oct. 25 column on the opinion page. It should be noted that no information released by the university in any way, shape or form changed.

Hazing is too serious of an issue to be put on an opinion page. Seper says there should be an "all encompassing policy governing social fraternities, from Pi Kappa Alpha, to the marching band fraternities," and "a tough anti-hazing policy would take a stand against a lot of thinking in the greek community."

Well, Seper, perhaps you should get out more. Eastern has had a hazing policy for quite some time. The policy is very specific in terms of inappropriate behavior. Two years ago, the policy was changed from a "Fraternity/Sorority Hazing Policy" to a "Recognized Student Organization Policy." In addition to fraternities and sororities, "marching band fraternities," as well as our other 150 recognized organizations are made aware of and held accountable to the very policy you seem to think needs to be created.

I realize you, a student, are learning through your collegiate journalism experience. Allow me to give you some advice: Collect your information relevant to a column before writing it. As a reader, it's frustrating to see lazy student journalists who fail to gather information hide behind the motto, "Tell the truth and don't be afraid." Why don't you first find out what the truth is?

Let's talk about the truth. The TRUTH is that the Office of Student Activities will investigate all alleged hazing violations by any recognized student organization. The TRUTH is that all recognized student organizations must sign the hazing policy, saying they understand the policy and will adhere to it. The truth is that within the fraternity and sorority systems, we are continually holding educational programming on the components of a positive new member experience vs. hazing.

The TRUTH is that we have a hazing policy which clearly outlines disciplinary sanctioning procedures. Each situation is dealt with individually, not based on other groups' previous behavioral irregularities. Unfortunately,

Eileen Sullivan

"We are developing new and innovative ways to provide positive membership education to our members."

sometimes information may come to the administration's attention after an incident has occurred.

You stated that you feel that there is no effective way to prevent hazing. I don't agree. Educational programming from the university and national headquarter angle, coupled with shorter pledge/new member programs and strict policy, are part of the solution.

The TRUTH is that hazing is a criminal act in more than 30 states. The TRUTH is that college students continue to be injured every year by ill-conceived hazing. The TRUTH is that although hazing has been actively discouraged by the national fraternities and sororities for decades, highly publicized isolated incidents diminish or destroy the value of worthwhile positive and beneficial greek activities across the nation.

Here's what we're doing about it: the TRUTH is fraternities and sororities that recognize that the best candidates for membership will neither support nor submit to hazing have long attracted the best members and will continue to do so.

The TRUTH is we are developing new and innovative ways to provide positive membership education to our members, not just education for new members, but ongoing personal development for members throughout their college career.

The TRUTH is that this information, as well as a copy of our policy, could have been yours had you simply asked. It is frustrating to read a paper which allows students who don't take the time to gather facts to pose as "budding journalists." However, this is the same paper who last week (again) misquoted me and then misquoted my correction. By policy and education, the university sends the message that there is no place in our greek community for those who think anyone should demonstrate worthiness by suffering insult or injury.

You, Seper, need to take the time to research columns you deem worthy of your opinion prior to writing them. welcome you to do what you should have done quite some time ago - contact our office. We'd be more than happy to provide you with the hazing policy that's been in place, as well as walk you through the general investigative procedure.

The university does not take the issue of hazing lightly. Neither should you.

- Eileen Sullivan is assistant director of student activities and greek affairs and a guest columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Russian people currently seeing the evils of capitalism

Dear editor:

It appears that the Russian people will now have the opportunity to see the fruits of capitalism.

They are already seeing many of capitalism's fruits:

Skyrocketing crime rates, an epidemic of fraud, embezzlement, corruption and assorted vices.

They are seeing an onslaught of commercialism, materialism, greed and a vast spiritual emptiness.

Your turn

They are seeing poverty, hunger, homelessness, despair; social Darwinism, with the rich becoming richer, the poor poorer; a cutthroat, dog-eat-dog environment; economic barbarism, with mass unemployment, low wages and unaffordable medical care.

They are seeing rampant sectarian and ethnic hate and violence.

Good luck to the Russians! They will need it.

Forum aimed at diversity

By ADAM McHUGH
Activities editor

Discussing minority issues is the objective of a "Free Your Mind" forum, which will be held tonight to close out "The Real World: Critical Issues Week 1993."

The forum will consist of a panel of representatives from several campus organizations, including the Multi-Cultural Student Union, Latino American Student Organization, Black Student Union, Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Allies Union and a physically disabled student and others. Student Senate members Katina Gillespie and Lance Phillips will moderate the forum, which also is part of Cultural Diversity Awareness Day - one of the four main topics in this year's Critical Issues Week.

Gillespie said each time a forum is held, new topics are discussed because the audience dictates what subject areas will be covered.

"Lance (Phillips) and I usually ask questions to the panel to get things started, and then let the audience take control of the forum," Gillespie said.

She said the forum, which has already been held in two residence halls this semester, usually focuses on the LGBAU, which has been in existence for about one year.

"A lot of discussion zeros in on the LGBAU and what members have encountered on campus," Gillespie said.

Other issues usually discussed at the forums include the "Miss Black EIU Pageant" and the difficulties physically impaired students experience on campus.

Housing interviews continue

By M.K. GUETERSLOH
Staff writer

Housing needs to keep pace with the direction of the university, the director of university housing at Central Missouri State University told onlookers at an interview Wednesday for Eastern's director of Housing and Dining Services.

Mary Ann Ryan, the third of four candidates to interview for the position, spoke to a group of about nine at the housing director interview in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

"Housing must take the mission of the university and complement it," Ryan said. "Any time we do anything in housing we must complement that mission. Any time students spend out of the classroom is spent with us."

David Stephen, associate director of residence life at Arizona State University, will be available to the public at 11:15 a.m. Friday in the Martinsville room of the Union.

Ryan said her reasons for applying for the director of Housing and Dining Services position include the reputation of the university's housing program, the school's location and the opportunity for her to obtain a doctorate degree.

"This would be a wonderful opportunity," Ryan said. "Eastern's reputation in housing programs is well known."

Ryan said she does not see any major problems with the school's housing system that need to be corrected.

"In a program as well known as Eastern and with the occupancy rate as high as it is at Eastern, you don't have a problem."

The duties that the housing director assumes include managing the financial operations of the residence hall system, coordinating with the Physical Plant on the maintenance of the residence halls, and overseeing Greek and University courts and University Apartments.

University Board is now accepting coordinator applications for our new committee.

Local barber an Eastern tradition

By SUSAN KIEL
Features editor

After 29 years at Eastern, Aaron Buchanan thinks it's time he at least receive an honorary degree.

The only problem is Aaron isn't a student. He's a barber whose shop, Aaron's Hair Care Salon, has been located since 1964 in University Village at Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue.

"I love this location," said Aaron. "I'd much rather be near a college, I love the college kids. They're young, intelligent, sharp kids and are looking to better themselves.

"I'm hoping it will rub off on me, and I'll get an honorary degree. I should, considering all of the professors that have come in here over the years."

Aaron, known to most of Charleston by his first name only, has been cutting hair for 42 years. He went to barber college in Louisville, Ky., when the training was a one-year program.

"I went to Kentucky to train as a carpenter under my grandfather, and he asked me, 'are you sure this is what you want to do?' and I thought about it, and I said what I really want to do is go to barber school," he said. "So I stayed with my grandfather and I went to school down the street."

Aaron considers himself part of a dying breed. With new trends turning toward beauty salons and cosmetology for both sexes, Aaron takes pride in being from 'the old school.'

"The difference between cosmetology and barbering is, we have a license that says we can do anything they can do - we just don't want to,"

he said.

One reason he cites for the decline in the number of barbers is the lack of state funding for barber colleges.

"The state, they'll give money to send people to the beauty colleges and whatnot, but they won't support the barber colleges, and there's not many around here."

In 42 years Aaron has seen hair fads come and go, but the fad that hurt his business most was long hair for men.

"After World War II when I first started, there were a lot of flat tops and whatnot, so there were plenty of barbers. I don't mind the long hair, but it really hurt our business. We went from a town with 27 barbers to about seven," he said.

But if the line Aaron finds waiting outside his door in the morning is any indication, the trend has gone back to short hair, especially among the college students, Aaron said.

As for the men who still prefer to go to the beauty salons, he says, "That's OK, we can't handle them all anyway."

While a barber shop is usually considered a male tradition, Aaron said he has no objection to women barbers or to women in a barber shop.

"We cut a lot of ladies' hair," he said. "We don't do the perms and things, because we just don't have the time for it, but sure we cut ladies' hair."

Aaron said barber college taught him how to cut all sorts of hair, including minorities'.

"A couple of years ago some black students were complaining there was no place for them to get their hair cut, but they never came to me." "This license says I can cut anybody's hair in the state, and I've never turned down anybody in my life."

"I've cut black people's hair, I learned on black people in barber college. I've always had black students come in. The difference is, on their hair you have to cut down."

"Don't get me wrong, they know how to cut their hair better than we do, but I can do it."

Aaron Buchanan, owner of Aaron's Hair Care Salon, gives 9-year-old Clayton Cooper a spike haircut. Aaron has been located in University Village across from Eastern for 28 years.

Aaron is a town icon of sorts: He's been cutting residents' hair all their lives and they all know his name. It's just keeping their names straight that Aaron has a problem with.

"There are people who I've cut their hair for years, and don't even know their names. They just climb in the chair, and we start talking. I probably couldn't remember it if they told me."

"There are kids in college who come to me and I've cut their hair all their lives, and I've cut their dads' hair before them and maybe even their grandfathers'."

Not much about Aaron's shop has changed in the past 32 years, making it a welcome sight to visiting alumni.

"Every year I get people who are visiting Eastern and stop by to see if I'm still here and usually they're surprised to see me," he said.

Aaron's prices have changed, however. Although still reasonable, they are quite a change from the 50-cent cuts he offered when the shop opened.

Prices are: $8 for a special haircut, flat tops or spike; $7 for a regular haircut; $5 for a beard trim; $5 for shampoo; and $2 for a tonic or other miscellaneous services.

Aaron's still offers shaves for $7, but says he doesn't advertise them because they take as long as a haircut and customers just don't want to pay for them anymore.

"It's hard to charge $7 for a shave when you can buy a razor for 30 cents," he said.

As for how long he can keep this up, Aaron has no idea.

"If I keep feeling as good as I do now, I don't know how much longer," he said. "I still look forward to coming to work everyday. I couldn't just go home and rake leaves."

"I've never regretted my decision. If I had it to do all over again, and open a shop, I'd make sure it was in a college town."

Maddux wins second straight NL Cy Young

NEW YORK (AP) — The best way for Greg Maddux to show the Atlanta Braves he was worth the big money was to win a second straight Cy Young Award.

And Maddux did just that Wednesday, joining Sandy Koufax as the only National Leaguers to win the honor in successive seasons.

Maddux was 20-10 with a major league-leading 2.36 ERA in his first season for Atlanta, and became the first pitcher to win the award in consecutive years with different teams. He went 20-11 with a 2.18 ERA in 1992 for the Chicago Cubs, then signed a five-year, $28 million free-agent contract with the Braves.

"You change teams and you want to make a good first impression," Maddux said. "I feel like I've done that. ... I didn't really change anything in the way I pitched. I pretty much tried to do the same things that have always worked in the past." Maddux received 22 of the 28 first-place votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. He easily outdistanced San Francisco's Bill Swift and John Burkett and Braves teammate Tom Glavine — all with more victories but higher ERAs.

"I am surprised," Maddux said from his home in Las Vegas. "I think the most important stat is games won, and Glav and Swift and Burkett all won more than I did."

No pitcher was named on all 28 ballots. Jack McDowell won the AL's Cy Young winner Tuesday and was the only pitcher listed on every ballot.

Koufax won the award in 1965-66 with the Los Angeles Dodgers, when only one Cy Young was presented. Koufax also won in 1963.

"I don't consider myself to be half the pitcher he was," Maddux said. "But I think I still have six or seven or 10 years left."

Beginning in 1967, a winner in each league was selected. Since then, Roger Clemens in 1986-87, Jim Palmer and Denny McLain have been repeat winners in the AL.

The only other pitcher to win the award for different teams was Gaylord Perry — in 1972 with Cleveland and 1978 with San Diego.

Helium is not the secret to Auburn punter's success

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Despite leading the nation, Auburn's Terry Daniel was as obscure as most punters. Then along came Jackie Sherrill.

"Everywhere I go, they say, 'Hey Helium, how you doing?' and 'What's up Helium?'" Daniel said with a grin. "Even at our last game against Arkansas ... coach (Danny) Ford came up and said, 'Let me see that ball. Let me check it out.'" Daniel, who grew up in the small east Alabama town of Valley, is reveling in all the attention he has received since word broke last week that Sherrill, the Mississippi State coach, accused Auburn of pumping helium into its balls.

Later, Sherrill denied that he thought Daniel was using the lighter-than-air gas when he punted twice for a 56.5-yard average in State's loss to the Tigers. Sherrill did concede he asked for an investigation.

The balls were confiscated and sent to the Southeastern Conference office. The verdict: Daniel has used nothing but air to lead the nation with a 48.3-yard average.

"It was kind of a compliment," he said. "It was like, 'He's got to be doing something with those balls to kick like that.'" Since then, newspapers around the country have conducted their own tests to determine if helium balls travel farther than those filled with just air. Sports Illustrated even came to campus to conduct its own tongue-in-cheek experiment with Daniel and an Auburn physicist.

"I've enjoyed it," Daniel said. "I would like to thank Jackie Sherrill for making the accusation. He's kind of made me real popular overnight." For SI, Daniel punted two balls — one filled with helium, the other loaded with air — 10 times each. The helium ball had an average distance of 57.7 yards; the air ball went an average of 59.8 yards.

bad timing, but personally, I don't think it's bad timing.

"I'd have to contradict that. I think now is a good time."

Callahan, who, like Samuels and Ralston, spoke quite favorably of Ryan, said he thought Ryan simply wanted to pursue other interests.

"I don't think Mike's the kind of person who's going to run away from anything. I don't know what other people are assuming," Callahan said. "There were some things on the docket that in the past couple, three months needed to be addressed, and I think he's addressed those issues."

Bob Saltmarsh, Eastern's NCAA faculty representative, said he wasn't surprised by the timing of the announcement but more by the announcement itself.

"It's a development which I feel very sorry about," Saltmarsh said. "I had some indications about it, but I guess I would regard it as something that I didn't think would happen, but it did."

will start in place of Richart Saturday when the Panthers host Northwestern Louisiana in a non-conference game at O'Brien Stadium.

"From a physical standpoint there isn't that much dropoff (from Richart to Gilson)," Spoo said. "But from a mental aspect, George doesn't have much experience, so if there is any liability that may it."

Despite the loss of Richart, Spoo still feels that the running game is still one of the Panthers' strengths.

"We are going to go ahead and feel that it is a strength," he said. "Fortunately it's not two or three guys we have to replace."

Should it not work out with Gilson at Richart's spot, Spoo said he would give thought to moving junior Aaron Hill over to tackle and bringing in junior Clint Hyde to Hill's guard spot.

Spoo said that cornerback Ray McElroy, who has been hobbled by a sore ankle, still isn't 100 percent.

"Ray is still hobbled," Spoo said. "The injury appears to be more severe than I first thought."

McElroy, a preseason All-Gateway pick at cornerback, saw limited action last week in the Panthers' 35-13 victory over Southwest Missouri State. Should he not be able to play, redshirt freshman Mike McNary will make his second consecutive start.

"We will consider our options as the week goes on," Spoo said.

Athletic department shocked

Athletic director's resignation catches staff, coaches off-guard

By ROBERT MANKER
Associate sports editor

Administrators and coaches in the Eastern athletic department said they were shocked more by the timing of Athletic Director Mike Ryan's resignation than by the announcement itself.

Most agree it was common knowledge Ryan had actively been pursuing other career interests, but his impending resignation, effective Dec. 1, comes at a time when the department is undergoing gender equity reviews, NCAA re-certification and potential conference expansion.

"I'm concerned because I think we're at a point in athletics where we really need strong leadership," said Eastern men's basketball coach Rick Samuels. "My concern is that now we will go into a period with a lack of stability."

Joan Schmidt, associate athletic director, served as interim athletic director from December 1988 through May 1989, when Ryan was chosen to replace R.C. Johnson, who left to take the same job at the University of Miami of Ohio.

She said she knew Ryan had been pursuing other opportunities.

"I know the fact that he's interested in something else or is interested in going to another job doesn't really come as a surprise," Schmidt said. "But there was not really any kind of discussion to indicate that he would leave at this time."

Schmidt added that although she was an applicant for the position when Ryan was hired, she does not intend to apply this time.

Volleyball coach Betty Ralston called the timing of Ryan's announcement "strange" considering the challenges currently facing the athletic department.

"That's the thing that I think shocks everybody the most," Ralston said. "But as President Jorns told us in the (staff) meeting (Wednesday) morning, the documents are there."

Mike prepared all of the initial documents for us, and I think we've got the personnel here who can handle that.

"But, yes, the timing is strange. We've got a lot of tough things to go through. Whoever gets named the acting A.D. is going to have a lot of responsibility as well as the new A.D. coming in. There are a lot of tough questions for somebody to face."

Dan Callahan, Eastern baseball coach, said he was not as surprised with the timing of the announcement as some of his colleagues were.

"I don't think it was a hastily made decision or anything like that," Callahan said. "I could see where some people might view that as being Eastern junior Paul Agyeman attempts to drive the ball around two Quincy defenders during Wednesday's 1-0 soccer loss at Lakeside Field. The loss was the third consecutive shutout against the Panthers, who finish the season at 9-9.

Knee injury costs Panthers a tackle

By DON O'BRIEN
Staff writer

Just when it seemed things were going the way Eastern's football Panthers wanted, something had to happen.

Junior offensive tackle Mike Richart will miss the rest of the season after tearing his anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee at the end of practice Tuesday.

"He is done for the year," said Eastern head coach Bob Spoo, whose team has won and tied in its last two games. "I believe he'll have to have an operation to repair it."

Richart, a native of

Mike Richart

Robinson, was one of the keys along the Eastern offensive line, which has helped open holes for full-back Willie High, who has rushed for more than 200 yards in a game twice so far this season.

"Fortunately, he has another year left and we look forward to having him back," Spoo said.

Soccer Panthers drop finale 1-0

By ANTHONY NASELLA
Staff writer

Missed opportunities were again the soccer team's shortcoming during its Wednesday game against Quincy.

Looking to net a goal for the first time in three games, the Panthers squandered 13 shots on goal in a 1-0 season-finance loss at Lakeside Field.

The Panthers finished the season with a 9-9 record. Quincy, who has been playing Eastern over three decades, improved to 12-6.

"It just didn't work out today," Panthers coach Cizo Mosnia said. "We had our chances to score, no doubt."

"We could have been a little more intelligent in our execution in the second half. We weren't very smart in our passes to the net. The effort was there, just no goals."

The lone goal of the game was by Quincy's Heath Tagtmeyer at the 11:20 mark of the first half. For the game, the Hawks managed just eight shots on goals.

Panther goalie Jacob Gress, who has filled in for injured freshman Brian Ritshel over the last four games, took the tough-luck loss. The Panthers failed to score a goal in any of Gress's three losses.

"He's handled the roll very well," Mosnia said. "He had some trouble judging the ball in mid-air today. But other than that, he's done quite well. It's a shame he's gotten little offensive support."

Eastern almost forced overtime with 13 seconds to play, but Paul Agyeman's head shot of a corner-kick pass went just wide to the right of the net.

"Paul was working hard today," Mosnia said. "But he missed a couple of easy ones right in front of the net which we could have used."

The Panthers held a 7-4 record at one time in the season. But Mosnia recognized an increase in the Panther competition played a role in the final record.

"Earlier, we weren't playing the type of teams, believe, that were of the same quality of what we've been playing recently," Mosnia said. "We had kind of a easy ride earlier on. But we always played hard."

Mid-Con expansion on hold

The Mid-Continent Conference is still the same — for now.

The Missouri Valley Conference's President's Council voted Tuesday on what school would be added to the league. However the council is not releasing the results of the vote until later in the week.

One of the schools that is taking a big interest in the Missouri Valley is Mid-Con member Northern Illinois. Other candidates who are looking to receive an expansion bid from the Missouri Valley Conference are Evansville, Loyola, Butler and Missouri-Kansas City, all current members of the Midwestern Collegiate Conference.

The 10-team Mid-Continent Conference is also looking to expand and is hoping to add Loyola and Butler. Presidents from the member schools met last week to choose two new schools but have held off an announcement until after the Missouri Valley makes a move.

A representative from the Mid-Con said there will not be an announcement until early next week.

If the Mid-Con were to keep Northern Illinois and add two other teams, it would then divide into two six-team divisions.

However, the Midwestern Collegiate Conference is looking to add two Mid-Con teams in Wright State and Cleveland State. If that were to occur, it would be unlikely that any other teams would leave the conference.
